

LOOKING AT US

IN MEMORIAM

SUSAN FALLON

We, the eighth grade class of the Kennedy, dedicate this yearbook to Susan Fallon. Although not going on to high school with us, she will not be forgotten. She will be sadly missed.

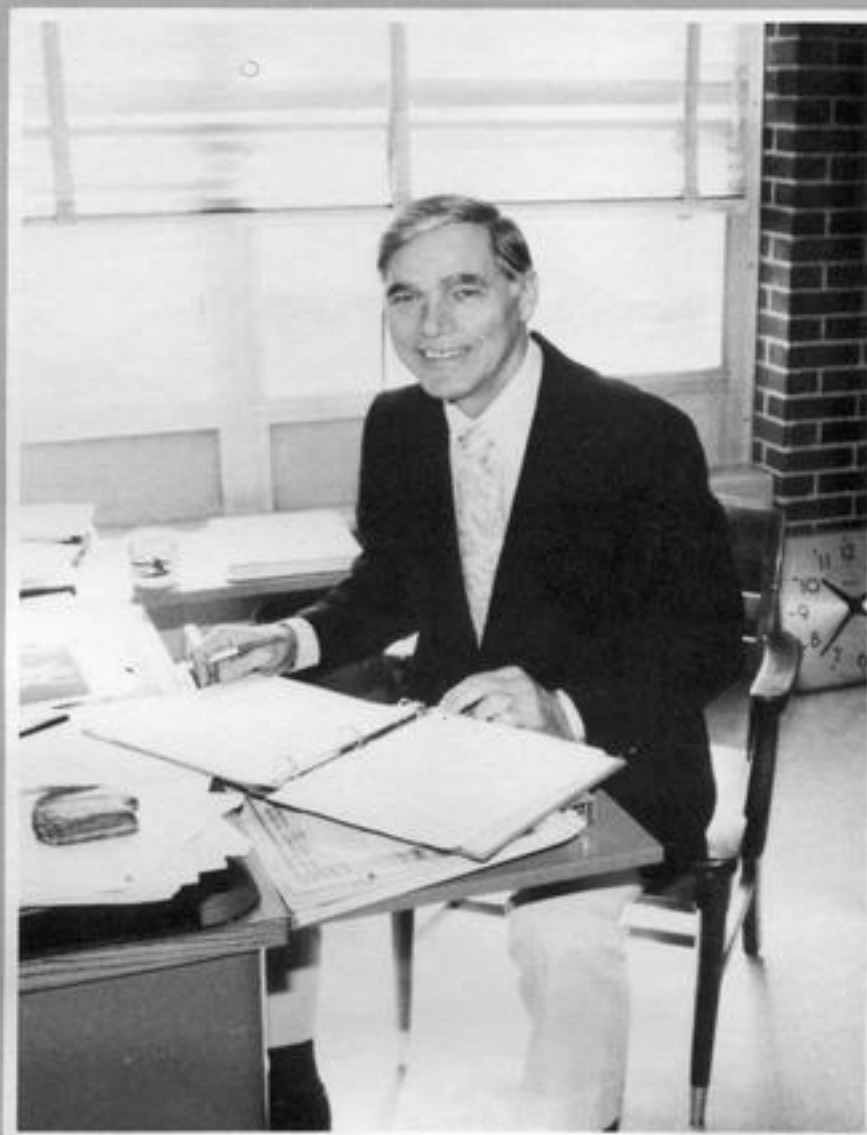

"Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil: for Thou art with me." Psalm 23:4

ADMINISTRATION

Mr. Blanchard (Principal)

Mr. Quegan (Assistant Principal)

PRINCIPAL'S MESSAGE

This has been a year of turmoil. It has been filled with events that long will be remembered by youngsters and adults alike. We have felt the wave of political danger and uncertainty from world areas such as Iran, Poland and El Salvador. We have sensed national despair (and eventual relief) as our country was held hostage. We have experienced a continued wave of violence in our own land, culminating in the attempted assassination of the president. Locally, we have been suffering acute insecurity resulting from impending cuts in employment and services effecting our own schools and community. The year will be remembered by many as one marked by the distresses of an ever-more-complex existence.

Nevertheless, in spite of damaged morale and deep concern for the future of our world, our nation and our community, we must forge ahead in an attempt to enable young people to develop their minds and bodies. Our goal, that of education and socialization, must always be set before us. Only as we instill a deep sense of human values in our students can we hope to begin to resolve some of the difficulties in our society. In part, this can be done through the efforts of the schools of our land, by teaching factual material, by creating meaningful life experiences, and by providing adequate role models for the development of character and personality.

Our homes and our schools have a huge task set before them—perhaps more important to accomplish than ever before in our history. We must seek to inculcate those values and abilities that will enable today's youth to create a better world. To this end we of the J. F. Kennedy School are dedicated.

Our hope and desire for our students as they greet another year end is that they will continue to grow toward the above goals.

Students, use your time wisely, with a view toward your future and that of your world.

Parents, take heart; your task is not impossible, but it is difficult and we are here to assist you in your efforts to do the very best for your family.

Teachers and Staff, I thank you for your work under difficult conditions, in stressful times. Remember your commitment to the young people of this community. No matter what future years may hold, right now you have the potential to influence society in a marked way through the young lives with whom you presently work.

To you all, I wish a refreshing summer and a time that will help you to re-evaluate and set new goals and priorities for whatever challenges await you in the fall.
